A number of checks or drafts on the North River Bank have been floating about, but on being presented, payment was invariably refused. In this way various parties in N. York have been swindled. The prisoners were brought up on Saturday for examination, and were finally held to bail in the sum of $2,500 each. The same thing was attempted in Philadelphia on Saturday.

During the six months of the present year the exports from New York to foreign ports show a large decrease as compared with former periods. They are very considerably less than for the same months in 1864 and 1865, but when compared with 1863, the falling off is wonderful.

Congress has made, at the close of the session, a joint committee on retrenchment. A dispatch from Memphis says:

George Peabody has expressed to President Buckle, of the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, his willingness to put $100,000 more into 8 percent bonds of that road, provided $300,000 more are raised to complete it from the Memphis to Memphis. Mr. Peabody already has $264,000 in this road.
